ron of the guard duty corps from an eight-horse state carriage containing the Duchess Cecilia sitting on the right of the Empress. The Duchess' mistress of the robes, the Baroness Von Tiele-Winckler, was seated opposite them.

What Duchess Wore.

The young Duchess wore an evening dress of pink silk musin cut decollete and trimmed with lace. The skirt, which was embroidered with loose roses, had a deep flounce of point d'Angleterre lace. The Duchess' shoulders were covered ith a light pink mantle of viole silk eneath which as it fell apart in front flash of jewels could be seen. She wore a tiara of diamonds in her hair. The richly glided carriage in which the Duchess sat composedly, although flushed with the emotions of the hour, was an odd-looking piece of workman-able new in the year 1752 when the future Queen Louise of Prussia, then a girl of 17, made her state entry into the city through the same gate.

Royal Luxury Displayed.

In advance of the equipage walked two tall grooms in blue and gold and beside each of the eight black horses was a groom in scarlet and gold livery. The harness was of silver and fastened to the horses' heads were plumes of black and white ostrich feathers, Altogether the observers of the royal luxury and display were satisfied. On the right of the Duchess' carriage rode the master of the horse, Count Von Wedel, and on the left the Governor of Berlin, Gov. Von Sahnke. Another squadron of guard du corps in white cloth tunics, golden helmets topped with eagles followed. in two other six-horse carriages were the ladies in waiting of the Empress and the Ducheas

Uhlans Close Pageant.

A squadron of Uhlans with a mount-band fell in at the rear and closed the pageant.

The course of the procession lay for a mile through the Tiegarten. Where the roads closed there were 400 children who santy "God Greet Thee." Their voices sounded sweetly in the woods.
Along each side of the way veterans were lined up, while here and there stands were erected under the shade of the trees.

the Duckess came in view of one of the broadest avenues in the world, Unter Den Limen, set from end to end with four rows of Venetian masts. Swinging from mast to mast were ropes of evergreens and roses, while the lime trees also were hung with garlands of roses. Thousands of flags fluttered on each side of the avenue, Mecklenburgs' red, yellow and blue predominating. The perspective from the arched gate o the palace at the other end was most

The Duchess, however, probably saw very little of the scene for she was bowing to the right and left acknowledging the cheering of the crowds.

Hundred Maids Courtesy.

Hundred Maids Courtesy.

The procession stopped inside the gate and 100 maids of honor in white costumes, courtesied. Each maid was crowned with roses and carried wreaths. Fraulein Kirshner, daughter of the Chief Burgomaster of Berlin, presented a bouquet of roses to the Duchess, who received it with a smile and a how. Then the Chief Eurgomaster, in a purple robe trimmed with fur, and wearing the gold chain insignia of his office, stepped forward and coad a hrief address of welcome. It was mief by the Empror's request so as to spare the Duchess the ordeal of a long wait under many eyes. She thanked the Eurgomaster in a few simple words, and rait under many eyes. She thanked the Surgemaster in a few simple words, and ne procession began to move again, the millery at the other end of the Unterden Linden firing twenty guns.

Throw Roses Under Horses. Fifty little girls threw roses under the horses feet as the Duches went on her way down the alley of lime trees, which were hung with roses, the masses of people covering even roofs, waving flags and cheering. The members of the trades and crafts guilds and their apprentices were ranked on either side, the fish-dealers with nets, and the chimney-sweeps with brooms.

Thousands at Windows.

The sidewalks, stands and windows verlocking Unterden Linden had been occupied for hours and some hundreds of uncleon parties were given in rooms renting on Unterden Linden M. Bisourd, the French Embassador, Invited

HAVE STOMACH CATARRH CATE II DYSPEPSIA

Two Beautiful Women Cured of Stomach Catarrh By Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. G. W. Davis, 1418 11th street, N. W., Washington,

D. C., writes: "After suffering some time with indigestion and dyspepsia, and having tried so many remedies without relief, I was persuaded by some friends to take Peruna. "After using several bottles, I found such good results that I can cheerfully thank you and praise your wonderful medicine, Peruna, to my friends in general.'
